INTERVIEW WITH DIRECTOR/PRODUCER JACQUELINE RHODES & FORMER FURY/INTERVIEWEE GINNY BERSON OF "ONCE A FURY"

NEWS TONIGHT LIVE
04/29/21

LGBTQ+ HEADLINES: students are threatened with eviction for hanging Pride flags

Queer News Tonight is proud to showcase many of the film directors during the Outshine LGBTQ+ Film Festival and tonight, we are pleased to feature the film "Once A Fury". The Furies were a 1970s lesbian feminist collective that advanced the notion of lesbian separatism to correct what they called the "Zig-Zag and Haphazard" straight women's movement. The Furies were intense: twelve women began the group, worked together, and then broke up in just under two years. In that short time, they wrote and published a widely read newspaper (also called The Furies) that advanced their ideology and still seems relevant 50 years later. "Once A Fury" profiles former members of the Furies, the notorious 1970s lesbian separatist collective that published a national newspaper and planned to seize state power. The film features interviews with 10 of the original 12 Furies, photography by Jeb (Joan E. Biren), and archival materials. Joining us tonight is director/producer Jacqueline Rhodes and former Fury/interviewee Ginny Benson. Once A Fury is Jacqueline's first feature film. She is currently a professor of writing, rhetoric, American cultures & an author, Ginny is a lifelong activist and former Fury. Her memoir, "Olivia On The Record", was just published by Aunt Lute Books and details her role in establishing Olivia Records. Here to tell us more about "Once A Fury", virtually playing at the Outshine LGBTQ+ Film Festival – Wednesday, April 28th through Sunday, May 2, are director/producer Jacqueline Rhodes and former Fury/interviewee Ginny Benson!

THREE TRANSGENDER PEOPLE ALLEGE ABUSE AT MIAMI JAIL

LGBTQ+ HEADLINES: Q - Leslie Jordan hated himself for being gay...until this ha

The Transgender Legal Defense And Education Fund Sent A Letter To Miami-

Dade County Mayor Daniella Levine Cava Yesterday. The Complaint Centered On Three transgender people that suffered alleged abuse at a Miami jail last year after police arrested them during Black Lives Matter protests. They said Christian Pallidine, a college student who identifies as a trans man, was attending a Black Lives Matter protest in downtown Miami on May 31, 2020, when Miami-Dade police officers arrested him and charged him with violating a county-wide curfew. Pallidine arrived at the Turner Guilford Knight Correctional Center a short time later, and the letter notes personnel abused him because of his gender identity. The letter to the mayor said “The staff at TGK subjected Mr. Pallidine to degrading and outrageous treatment because he is transgender. TGK staff forced him to strip and display his genitals in front of a group of officers — part of a series of invasive, pseudo-medical, sexualized procedures conducted on him for no legitimate purpose. TGK staff also belittled Mr. Pallidine, publicized his transgender status to others, asked gratuitous questions about his anatomy, and called him derogatory names.” The letter, among other things, notes Pallidine underwent an examination that “focused solely on his transgender status” and it “took place in a public area where others could easily see and hear him and the person questioning him.” The letter says the officer who conducted the exam asked him “multiple questions about his genitals and plans for future medical care, such as, ‘Do you want a penis in the future?’” Pallidine alleges he was forced to take a pregnancy test “because of his genitals” and officers mocked him because of his gender identity. Pallidine also says officers forced him to undergo a strip search and placed him in solitary confinement before his release. Jae Bucci and Gabriela Amaya Cruz on July 19, 2020, attended a rally and march for Black trans women in downtown Miami. Miami-Dade police officers brought them to the Turner Guilford Knight Correctional Center after they arrested them. Both walked through similar examples of their anti-trans treatment by the officers and staff. A virtual press conference organized by TLDEF, the Southern Poverty Law Center and the Harvard LGBTQ+ Advocacy Clinic discussed all three incidents. Currently there has not been an official response from the Miami-Dade County mayor’s office.

AIDS WALK RAISES $2 MILLION FOR LOCAL NON-PROFITS

LGBTQ+ HEADLINES: Montana governor signs cruel bill turning religion into 'weapon'

Tonight's Local Feature is brought to us by LGBTQ partners South Florida Gay News. An event two years in the making finally stepped off Saturday morning at South Fort Lauderdale Beach. The Florida AIDS Walk & Music Festival returned after being canceled last year due to the pandemic. Hundreds of loyal and excited walkers showed up ready to restart the event. The walk raised more than two million dollars, blowing past its goal of $1.5 million. The COVID crisis has dominated headlines this past year and charitable donations have gone down. Despite those extra challenges, Imara Canady with the AIDS Healthcare Foundation told SFGN that he's glad people haven't lost sight of the ongoing need for HIV/AIDS funding. He said "As we transition into society's 'new normal,' we are so pleased that the community remains committed to supporting the fight against HIV and AIDS throughout South Florida." Performers included Deep Fried Funk Bank, hip-hop legend Trina and icon Lil' Kim. Money raised from the event benefits several South Florida organizations, including The Pride Center at Equality Park, Equality Florida Institute, and SunServe. Terry Dyer, SunServe's director of Development, said he couldn't be happier. He said "After such a trying year, it was wonderful to get together, walk, celebrate, and raise important funds. Our hats off to [the AHF] team for organizing a pandemic safe exciting event. The fight to bring awareness and raise funds to end the epidemic of HIV/AIDS continues." This week's South Florida Gay News is on stands now, and we encourage our viewers to pick up a copy to learn about life in the Gayest Place on Planet Earth.
